

CONTENTS

PART ONE

Phase One

- CHAPTER I BIRTH OF AN IDEA
A cable operator's discovery—Early theories and experiments—Hertz invents the photoelectric cell—Hope from the thermionic valve—Fifty years of failure 19
- CHAPTER II SUCCESS FROM THE SCRAPHEAP
Baird at Selfridge's—His early life—Ventures in commerce—Jam in Trinidad, soap in London—The Hastings cure—Television problems—The washstand laboratory—Shadowgraphs 23

Phase Two

- CHAPTER III THE FOUNDATION IS LAID
An attic in Soho—Despair and starvation—True television begins 33
- CHAPTER IV THE ATLANTIC IS SPANNED
Seeing in the dark—America joins in—London—Glasgow transmissions—Startling news—Daylight television—The first colour pictures 37
- CHAPTER V THE ARENA IS SET
Baird Company expands—Big combines take interest—Baird-BBC controversy—A 2LO test—After midnight at the BBC—At the Coliseum—The first play—Typing to Australia 41
- CHAPTER VI THE DERBY SENSATIONS
An O.B. in Long Acre—Cameronian wins—The pioneer team—Television at Savoy Hill—The Derby in the cinema 49

CONTENTS

Phase Three

- | | | |
|--------------|--|----|
| CHAPTER VII | BBC ADOPTS THE INFANT TELEVISION
BBC opens its doors and appoints a staff of one—Memories of Studio BB—The Selsdon investigation—Light on some pioneers—America makes a false start | 56 |
| CHAPTER VIII | ROUNDING THE CORNER
A momentous report—Private enterprise barred—End of an era at 16, Portland Place | 63 |

Phase Four

- | | | |
|--------------|--|-----|
| CHAPTER IX | BRITAIN LEADS THE FIELD
Berlin makes a claim—Caution in the United States—Goebbels, the opportunist—Surprise from Holland—World round-up | 67 |
| CHAPTER X | “GET ON THE AIR—QUICK!”
Alexandra Palace develops—The first staff—The mad scramble for Radiolympia—An impromptu O.B. | 72 |
| CHAPTER XI | ELECTRONIC TELEVISION—AND A REMARK-
ABLE FORECAST
Baird-EMI comparisons—How modern television works—And a brainwave of 1908 | 78 |
| CHAPTER XII | ALEXANDRA PALACE—AND A FLASHBACK
Queen Victoria hears by telephone—Britain wins the television race—Film and “live” action combined—Crystal Palace fire—End of the Baird era—The Coronation—Queen Mary at Wimbledon | 84 |
| CHAPTER XIII | PROGRESS ABROAD
Uncertainty in the United States—Television sees death fall—Unfulfilled promises in Germany—The Munich excuse—Moscow buys from America—Communal viewing centres | 92 |
| CHAPTER XIV | ADVENTURE IN SUCCESS
Artists in sun tan—Productions become more elaborate—The new technique develops—Sunday “opening”—The navy who nearly ruined the Boat Race—Night dash with 105-foot aerial | 97 |
| CHAPTER XV | THE END OF THE BEGINNING
Theatre and cinema take notice—Problems of expansion—Black Friday, September 1, 1939 | 104 |

CONTENTS

Phase Five

- CHAPTER XVI TELEVISION GOES TO WAR
Alexandra Palace on the hush-hush list—
Wall Street invests millions—18,000 feet over Washington—Spying by television on Germans in Paris—The devilish ingenuity of the enemy—Blumlein and Browne killed in bomber crash—Britain thinks ahead—
And America gets going 107

Phase Six

- CHAPTER XVII RESURRECTION 123

PART TWO

- CHAPTER XVIII THIS IS TELEVISION
Size of the screen—Colour still in the future
—Advantages of “immediacy”—Stage and film comparisons 131

- CHAPTER XIX REPORTING IN PICTURES
The Outside Broadcast—The producer’s problems — Commentator at work — The Olympic Games and the Boat Race—Documentary O.B.s—At the theatre 135

- CHAPTER XX STUDIO IN ACTION
How a play is produced—Difficulties of casting—Rehearsal problems—The silent men—Lighting for the close-up—Handling four cameras at once—Split-second continuity 145

- CHAPTER XXI DRAMA—SOME ACHIEVEMENTS AND COM-PARISONS
A new interpretation of the dramatic art—
Hamlet to farce—Plays, new and old—
Intimate presentation—Stars in a new light
—A playwright’s fees 152

- CHAPTER XXII THE CAMERA AND THE ACTOR
The help of film—A harbour in the studio—
Scenes, real and symbolic—Adapting the theatre script—The “special” script—An introduction to Pirandello—The one-camera technique—Intimacy and adaptability in acting 159

CONTENTS

CHAPTER XXIII	BALLET—AND LIGHTER ENTERTAINMENT An example of culture—The need for colour —Ballet adapted to the camera—“Glamour” to pantomime—Talent from the Continent	171
CHAPTER XXIV	THE FEATURE AND THE DOCUMENTARY Expression of ideas—Art and information —Current affairs—Looking at the moon— Inventors’ Club—Dramatised documentar- ies—Children’s programmes—The origin of Muffin the Mule	178
CHAPTER XXV	FILM TAKES ITS PART The three aids of film—Those old “com- mercials”—Foreign and other classics— Film as a “convenience”—Newsreel’s answer to Wardour Street—How the film news is gathered	185

PART THREE

TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW

CHAPTER XXVI	THE INTERNATIONAL SCENE The craze in America—Comparisons with Britain—The power of the visual scene— France, television’s poor relation—Anglo- French agreement—European network of to-morrow—The curtain round Russia— World battle for contracts—The big prob- lem of “definition” and “lines”	193
CHAPTER XXVII	INDUSTRIÆ NIL IMPOSSIBILE! New developments—The telephone line for television — Recorded programmes — The micro-wave transmission	203
CHAPTER XXVIII	THE CINEMA AT THE CROSSROADS Slump at the box-office—The call for co- operation—Doom of the newsreels—Big- screen television and its investigation—BBC- Cinema talks break down	206
CHAPTER XXIX	AND SO—THE FUTURE World’s greatest television centre at White City—Television in education—Hospitals televise operations—The idealist looks ahead	211