

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS 9

PREFACE 11

THE ORPHAN IN A HANDBAG 17

An introduction to the film archive and intellectual property

The book's approach 20

The film archive: a brief history 22

– Archival beginnings 22

– Digitization 24

– Intellectual property 26

Structure of the book 28

1 TERRA INCOGNITA 35

The Nederlands Filmmuseum / EYE Film Institute Netherlands

What's in a name? 36

Dichotomy I: Creating historical resonance 38

Dichotomy II: The need for recategorization 43

2 A SWISS BANK 51

Recategorization I – The embargoed film

The archive as rights holder 52

Third-party rights holders: Fragile relations 53

– Close-up: ALS TWEE DRUPPELS WATER ('LIKE TWO DROPS OF WATER') 54

– The colourization debate 56

3 A HANDBAG 65

Recategorization II – The orphan film

Close-up: DE OVERVAL ('THE SILENT RAID') 66

The 'orphan works problem' and its causes 70

– Definition, demarcation, and scope 71

– Legal causes 74

– Administrative causes 79

Proposed solutions to the orphan works problem 81

– Legislative measures 81

– Administrative measures 84

4 A VEHICLE OF POWER 95

Recategorization III – The public domain film (or, what orphan films are not)

Close-up: BEYOND THE ROCKS 96

What is the public domain? 100

– The digital skew 102

– The public domain and public access 103

– The public domain and access to high-quality originals 107

5 A BIRTHPLACE 115

The begotten film

Found footage, legal provenance, and the 'aesthetics of access' 116

– Institutional reuse 117

– Noninstitutional reuse 122

The question of the archive 125

– 'BITS & PIECES AS SYNECDOCHE': a challenge to film history 126

6 THE POTENTIAL FOR HISTORY-MAKING 133

Of accidents and activation

Close-up: The Paper Print Collection 134

Themes and tensions 139

– Archival practice, and the 'activation of copyright' 139

– Public domain status 140

– The potential for (film) history-making 140

The archive and 'doing' history 141

The 'research program' 147

CONCLUSION 155

The Brighton line

- The film archive 156
- The copyright smokescreen 158
- The greatest films never seen 160

FILMOGRAPHY 165

BIBLIOGRAPHY 167

INDEX 183