

Contents

Acknowledgments	xii
List of Boxes	xiv
Introduction	1
Part I The Commercial Aesthetic
1 Taking Hollywood Seriously	5
“Metropolis of Make-Believe”	5
Art and Business	7
The Commercial Aesthetic of Titanic	10
A Classical Cinema?	14
Hollywood and its Audiences	19
Ratings and Franchises	22
Hollywood’s World	28
Summary	30
Further Reading	31
2 Entertainment 1	33
Escape	33
Money on the Screen	40
The Multiple Logics of Hollywood Cinema	46
Summary	52
Further Reading	53

3	Entertainment 2	54
	The Play of Emotions	54
	Regulated Difference	59
	Singin' in the Rain: How to Take Gene Kelly Seriously	66
	Summary	71
	Further Reading	72
4	Genre	74
	Genre Criticism	83
	Genre Recognition	86
	The Empire of Genres: Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid	93
	Genre and Gender	101
	Summary	107
	Further Reading	108

Part II Histories

5	Industry 1: To 1948	113
	Industry	113
	Distribution and Exhibition	114
	Exporting America	126
	Divorcement	128
	The Studio System	130
	The Star System	141
	How Stars are Made: A Star is Born	146
	Summary	154
	Further Reading	156
6	Industry 2: From 1948 to 1980	159
	The Effects of Divorcement	161
	Roadshows and Teenpix	165
	Independents, Agents, and Television	170
	Corporate Consolidation and the "New Hollywood"	173
	Ratings	177
	Hollywood in the Multiplex	181
	Summary	186
	Further Reading	187
7	Industry 3: Since 1980	189
	Video and New Markets	191
	The Pursuit of Synergy	205
	Globalization	212

Independence	217
Summary	224
Further Reading	225
8 Technology	227
Realism and the Myth of Total Cinema	229
Sound	238
Sunny Side Up	241
Color	248
Widescreen	251
Technology and Power	255
The Triumph of the Digital	259
Summary	264
Further Reading	265
9 Politics	268
The Politics of Regulation	270
Hollywood Goes to Washington	276
Washington Goes to Hollywood	280
Representing the Political Machine	287
Controversy with Class: The Social Problem Movie	292
Ideology	300
Summary	306
Further Reading	307
Part III Conventions
10 Space 1	311
The Best View	312
Making the Picture Speak: Representation and Expression	313
The Optics of Expressive Space	319
Deep Space: Three-Dimensionality on a Flat Screen	326
Mise-en-Scène	328
Editing	332
Summary	339
Further Reading	340
11 Space 2	343
The Three “Looks” of Cinema	343
Points of View	346
Safe and Unsafe Space	353
Ordinary People	358
Summary	365
Further Reading	365

12	Performance 1	368
	The Spectacle of Movement	372
	The Movement of Narrative	375
	Acting as Impersonation	377
	The Actor's Two Bodies	380
	Star Performance	384
	Summary	390
	Further Reading	391
13	Performance 2	393
	The Method	393
	Acting as a Signifying System	398
	Valentino	401
	The Son of the Sheik	406
	Summary	410
	Further Reading	411
14	Time	413
	Time Out	414
	Film Time	419
	Movie Time	423
	Deadlines and Coincidences: Madigan	426
	Mise-en-Temps	429
	Tense	432
	Back to the Present: History as a Production Value	436
	The Politics of History: Forrest Gump	440
	The Lessons of History: Juárez	443
	Summary	449
	Further Reading	450
15	Narrative 1	452
	Narrative and Other Pleasures	452
	Show and Tell	454
	Theories of Narration	458
	Plot, Story, Narration	462
	Clarity: Transparency and Motivation	465
	Summary	469
	Further Reading	470
16	Narrative 2	471
	Regulating Meaning: The Production Code	471
	Clarity and Ambiguity in Casablanca	475
	Narrative Pressure	484

Summary	488
Further Reading	489
Part IV Approaches
17 Criticism	493
From Reviewing to Criticism	494
Early Theory and Criticism in America	496
From Criticism to Theory	501
Criticism in Practice: Only Angels Have Wings	511
Summary	521
Further Reading	523
18 Theories	526
Entering the Academy	526
Structuralism and Semiology	528
Cinema, Ideology, Apparatus	531
Psychoanalysis and Cinema	535
The Spectator	537
Feminist Theory	540
Poststructuralism and Cultural Studies	542
Neoformalism and Cognitivism	546
From Reception to History	549
Summary	553
Further Reading	555
Chronology	557
Glossary	578
Appendices	593
1 The Motion Picture Production Code	593
2 The Code and Rating System, 1968	598
3 The Classification and Rating System: "What the Ratings Mean"	601
Notes	603
Bibliography	644
Index	666