

Table of Contents

List of Illustrations	7
Introduction: What Was a Film Society? Towards a New Archaeology of Screen Communities	11
1. The Knowledge Community: The Birth of the Film Society from the Spirit of Amateur Science	33
Where to Begin?	33
Early Film Societies and the Question of Knowledge	38
Precursors: Amateur Science	48
The Emergence of the Scientific Film Society	62
Governing Spectatorship: The Visual and the Verbal	76
Conclusion: Constructing Cinematic Selves	86
2. The Professional Community: Conceptualizing the Film Industry in the Deutsche Kinotechnische Gesellschaft	89
Beyond Audience Studies	89
The Revolt of the Cinema Engineer	94
Performing the Professional Community	100
Cinema Science as a Vocation	111
The Ecology of 'Industry': Film Technology vs. Film Trades	120
Conclusion: Roads Taken	135
3. Communities of Love: Cinephilic Film Clubs, Movie Magazines and the Viennese Kinogemeinde	137
The Rise of the Film Friends	137
Film Magazines and the Participatory Community	144
Re-Assessing Early Participation	158
The Kinogemeinde as Performative Community	164
Conclusion: Cinephilia and the Care of the Self	175
4. The Skeptical Community: Left-Wing Film Societies and the Making of the Suspicious Spectator	181
Left-Wing Suspicion	181
Positioning the Left-Wing Film Society	189
Confronting the Industry: The Question of Scale	199
Film as Mass Medium	211

Training the Suspicious Spectator	225
Conclusion	244
Afterword: What's in an 'Idea'?	247
Bibliography	251
Index	269