

Contents

List of Contributors	v
Introduction
Postcolonial Theory and the Postcommunist World	1
Ewa Mazierska, Lars Kristensen, Eva Närepea
1 'If Your Car Is Stolen, It Will Soon Be in Poland': Criminal Representations of Poland and the Poles in German Fictional Film of the 1990s	41
Kristin Kopp
2 Neighbours (Almost) Like Us: Representation of Germans, Germanness and Germany in Polish communist and Postcommunist Cinema	67
Ewa Mazierska
3 'I'm at Home Here': Sudeten Germans in Czech Postcommunist Cinema	91
Petra Hanáková
4 Jánošík: The Cross-Border Hero	115
Peter Hames
5 From Nationalism to Rapprochement? Hungary and Romania On-Screen	147
John Cunningham

- 6 Postcolonial Fantasies. Imagining the Balkans:
The Polish Popular Cinema of Władysław Pasikowski 175
Elżbieta Ostrowska
- 7 'Narcissism of Minor Differences'? Problems of
'Mapping' the Neighbour in Post-Yugoslav
Serbian Cinema 201
Špela Zajec
- 8 New Neighbours, Old Habits and Nobody's Children:
Croatia in the Face of Old Yugoslavia 227
Vlastimir Sudar
- 9 The Distant Among Us: Kolonel Bunker (1998) in a
Postcolonial Context 253
Bruce Williams
- 10 The 'Far East' Neighbour in Nikita Mikhalkov's
Urga (1991) 277
Lars Kristensen
- 11 The Women Who Weren't There: Russians in
Late Soviet Estonian Cinema 303
Eva Näripea
- Index* 327