

CONTENTS

CHAPTER ONE	THE SCREEN TECHNIQUE
	Joining scenes . . . transition by movement . . . subject movement . . . camera movement . . . combined subject and camera movement . . . combined visual techniques . . . audio techniques . . . types of films . . . the shot, the scene, and the sequence. . . organization of the continuity film . . . outline of screen techniques.
CHAPTER TWO	THE CUT	15
	Advantages of the cut . . . types of shots . . . types of continuity cuts . . . the match cut . . . matching the position . . . matching the movement . . . matching the look . . . the cut-away . . . the imaginary line . . . composition and the cut . . . the reverse . . . newsreel cutting.
CHAPTER THREE	MOVEMENT	35
	Reasons for movement . . . twelve basic movements . . . difficulties of movement . . . the master scene . . . movement and taste.
CHAPTER FOUR	ART AND VISUAL TECHNIQUE	47
	The cut . . . movement . . . composition . . . lighting . . . the montage . . . blending of techniques.
CHAPTER FIVE	ABOUT CAMERA	59
	Lenses . . . composition . . . the lens and composition . . . lighting . . . night effects . . . camera movement . . . special effects . . . the process screen . . . the cameraman and the director.

CHAPTER SIX	ACTORS AND ACTIONS	86
	The actor's problem . . . casting procedures . . . balancing the cast . . . amateur actors . . . background action . . . handling the actor.
CHAPTER SEVEN	ABOUT SOUND	103
	Sound track . . . direct recording . . . the sound man's problem . . . the director's sound problem . . . lip sync . . . the play-back . . . sound effects . . . background music . . . narration . . . dubbing . . . the creation of sound.
CHAPTER EIGHT	ABOUT PRODUCTION	127
	The writing stage . . . pre-production planning . . . sets and locations . . . the crew . . . the assistant director . . . the unit manager . . . the script clerk . . . the juicers . . . the grips . . . the prop men . . . the make-up men . . . production conferences . . . pre-production rehearsals . . . shooting . . . lining up the shot . . . technical perfection versus artistic perfection . . . meeting the schedule . . . editorial nomenclature . . . the editing phase . . . television.
CHAPTER NINE	THE COMMERCIAL ASPECT	160
	Types of producing organizations . . . the "typical" budget . . . types of production time . . . methods of saving time . . . the breakdown and shooting schedule . . . breaking down the shots . . . cheating . . . conservation of set-ups . . . balancing production factors.
CHAPTER TEN	PEOPLE AND PICTURES	180
	Balancing the crafts . . . theatrical films . . . about widescreen and 3D . . . the business film . . . the educational film . . . about television . . . temperament . . . a director's gripe . . . a last word.
BIBLIOGRAPHY		203
INDEX		205