

Contents

List of Plates	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	1
1. Film Color	14
Coloration in Early Cinema, 1895–1927	14
The Rise of Technicolor, 1915–35	25
Chromatic Cold War: Black-and-White and Color in Opposition	29
“Technicolor Is Natural Color”: Color and Realism, 1935–58	35
Chromatic Thaw: Hollywood’s Transition to Color, 1950–67	41
2. Surface Color	50
Color in European Film, 1936–67	50
Chromatic Ambivalence: Art Cinema’s Transition to Color	57
“Painting with Light”: Cinema’s Imaginary Art History	65
Unmotivated Chromatic Hybridity	68
Monochrome Purgatory: Absent Color in the Soviet Bloc, 1966–75	77
3. Absent Color	83
Black-and-White as Technological Relic, 1965–83	83
Black-and-White Flashbacks: Codifying Temporal Rebirth	89

Black-and-White Films, 1967–2007	97
Nostalgia and Pastiche	111
4. Optical Color	117
Cinema’s Newtonian Optics	117
White Light: Hollywood’s Invisible Ideology	122
Darkness Visible: From Natural Light to “ Neo-Noir ,” 1968–83	132
Cinematography and Color Filtration, 1977–97	139
Case Study: Seeing Red in Psycho	147
5. Digital Color	152
Crossing the Chromatic Wall in Wings of Desire	152
An Archaeology of Digital Intermediate, 1989–2000	155
Digital Color Aesthetics, 2000–9	164
Conclusion: Painting by Numbers?	179
Notes	181
Bibliography	195
Index	210