

Contents

---

Foreword xi
CHARLES MUSSER

Acknowledgments xv

Introduction 1
GAYLYN STUDLAR

Part One Huston, History, and Ideology

The Wartime Films of John Huston: 19
Film Noir and the Emergence of the Therapeutic
DAVID DESSER

Revisiting the Recordings of Wars Past: Remembering the Documentary Trilogy of John Huston 33
GARY EDGERTON

Havana Episode:
The Revolutionary Situation of We Were Strangers 63
ROBERT SKLAR

Traven, Huston, and the
Textual Treasures of the Sierra Madre 79
JOHN ENGELL

The Undeclared War: Political Reflections in a Golden Eye 97
STEPHEN COOPER

Part Two Huston and the Problem of Masculinity

John Huston and The Maltese Falcon 119
JAMES NAREMORE

Heroic, Antiheroic, Aheroic:
John Huston and the Problematical Protagonist 137
MARTIN RUBIN

Mastery through Masterpieces: American Culture, the Male Body, and Huston's Moulin Rouge 157
VIRGINIA WRIGHT WEXMAN

Shadowboxing: Fat City and the Malaise of Masculinity 177
GAYLYN STUDLAR

Part Three Documents

John Huston: A Biographical Sketch 201
DAVID DESSER

Encounter with Rui Nogueira and Bertrand Tavernier
(an interview with John Huston) 207
RUTH HOTTELL (translator)

"Fool" (from the American Mercury) 239
JOHN HUSTON

"Figures of Fighting Men" (from the American Mercury) 249
JOHN HUSTON

“Undirectable Director”
(from Life magazine, September 18, 1950) 255

JAMES AGEE

“John Huston” (from *The American Cinema:
Directors and Directions, 1929–1968*) 269

ANDREW SARRIS

“Johnny, We Finally Knew Ye”
(from the Village Voice, May 19, 1980) 273

ANDREW SARRIS

Filmography 279

Selected Bibliography 307

Photo Credits 308

Contributors 309