

---

Contents

---

Chapter One	In the beginning, there was a man turning a crank	1
Chapter Two	The invention of celluloid and the first hunters of moving images	5
Chapter Three	Thomas A. Edison: from the Kinetograph to the Kinetoscope	9
Chapter Four	The invention of the Cinématographe Lumière	13
Chapter Five	Méliès and the Wonderbox	17
Chapter Six	Machines and mechanisms	21
Chapter Seven	On and off screen	25
Chapter Eight	Work on the set. The birth of montage and the discovery of the film set	29
Chapter Nine	Camera movements	39
Chapter Ten	Close-ups, details	43
Chapter Eleven	Towards a grammar and a syntax of narrative	47
Chapter Twelve	Silent Movies	53
	Film	53
	The Camera	63
	Colour	71
	The film studio and shooting	83
	The trick film (also the father of cartoons or animated cinema) the birth of special effects	84
	Developing and printing	90
	Projection	94

Silver Screen to Digital: A Brief History of Film Technology

Chapter Thirteen	Cinema Talks	97
	Sound	97
	The camera	100
	Colour	103
	The film studio and filming	107
	Film	107
	The deterioration of film	114
	Special effects: from black and white to colour	117
	Editing and dubbing	120
	Developing and printing	122
	Projection	122
Chapter Fourteen	Cinema and digital	125
	The computer has arrived!	125
	Film: recovery and restoration	128
	From silver to pixel	132
	Progress or regression?	135
	Epilogue	137
	Index	141