

Contents

List of Figures	viii
Acknowledgments	ix
List of Abbreviations	x
Introduction: a longue durée of segregation against Roma: inside of whiteness	1
Critical whiteness as the only option for epistemic justice for Roma in Central Europe: methodological grounds	4
Remapping postcolonial Central Europe: the book's structure	7
PART I
Whiteness: the never-ending story of epistemic injustice against Roma	13
1 Whiteness: a locus for doing race	15
Roma in Central Europe: obsession with whiteness	15
Critical whiteness: options for justice	16
Whiteness in Europe: the over-determination of racism	18
Central European resistance to critical whiteness: between overt reactionism and implicit eliminativism	19
Conclusion	21
2 Obscure racism: from national indifference to whitening Roma	25
National indifference in Central Europe: obscuring race and class	25
Fixing Jewish identity: in the footsteps of whiteness	27
Normalizing Roma: whitening the past	30
Conclusion	33

- 3 The post-socialist shift in pathologizing: from disabled Roma to disabled socialism 36
- Pathologizing vs. normalizing: the two extremes of “whitening” Roma* 36
- Victimizing Roma: a (post-)socialist pathway of objectification* 38
- Historicizing as a possible response to pathologizing: toward epistemic justice* 40
- Conclusion* 41
- 4 The limits and options of historical narratives concerning Roma in Central Europe 44
- The normalizing and pathologizing of Roma as traditional narratives* 44
- Exemplary narratives in historicizing Roma: ruptures vs. continuities* 45
- Critical narratives of Central European history: losing Roma in transition* 46
- Quasi-genetic narratives of Roma: missing historical evidence* 49
- Conclusion* 51
- PART II
- The (in)educability of Roma: Central Europe between overt and enlightened racism 55
- 5 The inception of whiteness: the Grellmannian intersections of European Roma 57
- The Grellmannian dichotomies: introducing colonial discourse to the “Gypsy issue”* 57
- Non-human “Gypsies” vs. human Europeans: struggling for progress* 60
- Eternal children vs. masterful adults: unapproachable assimilation* 62
- The bestiality of “Gypsy” women vs. the whiteness of European men: toward the radical divergence of racial difference* 63
- Conclusion* 65
- 6 Global racial order comes to Central Europe: the puzzle of “White Gypsies” at the dawn of the twentieth century 69
- Racial intermixture in the Western world: the inception of racial intersectionality* 69

	Postcolonial Europe in the focus of outsiders and insiders: deepening (non)whiteness	74
	The threat of racial mixing in Central Europe: belligerent outsiders	75
	Other Europeans? The view of benevolent outsiders	79
	The response of insiders: adapting whiteness	82
	Roma in the focus of insiders and outsiders: signifying peripheral Europe	84
	Conclusion	90
7	The institutionalization of a racialized approach to Roma in the 1920s–1940s: rooting the stigma of an insecure population	98
	A racialized approach to Roma in police surveillance: between the challenges of a global security agenda and nation-building	99
	The doctrinal racism of František Štampach and Robert Ritter: the resonance of political will and personal choice	105
	Schooling the (in)educable? The intraracial hierarchy of “Gypsy primitives” in action	112
	Desirable “Gypsies” vs. unwanted others: an effective false antinomy in racializing Roma	117
	Conclusion	121
8	In (re)search of inclusion: Roma under the pressure of de-historicizing between the 1950s and 1990s	127
	Introduction	127
	Post-Porajmos racism: whitening memories to exclude Roma	128
	Roma in the global agenda of population studies: insecure populations vs. human progress	138
	The “Gypsy issue” in the international agenda of human adaptability: the crystallization of the racist community	139
	Implications for segregative practices: the outputs of the IBP in Czechoslovak policies concerning Roma	145
	De-historicizing Roma in Czech socialist fiction: visualizing whiteness	147
	Conclusion	155
	Conclusion: epistemic justice for Central European Roma: toward the unlimited negation of whiteness	166
	Index	171